

Interdisciplinary Studies

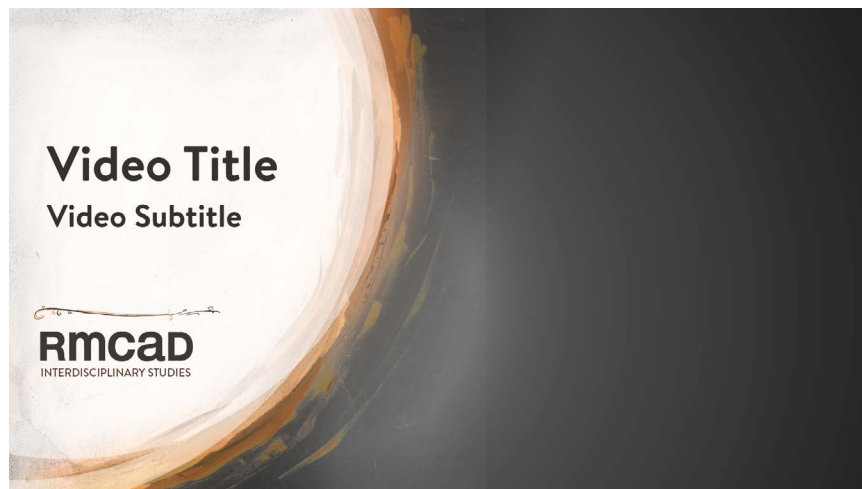

This is a way to start a new section

We use images as little accents at the start of sections or to break up the monotony of text. It's important to give readers little benchmarks as they read so they don't get too lost in a sea of words.

For video projects, we use a standardized template for bumpers and thumbnails, an example of which can be seen below. Each video in your project will be branded for easy identification and consistency within its larger department. Contact your friendly neighborhood instructional content developer to learn more!
